

$1,765,000 QUOTA WILL BE RAISED BY METHODISTS

North Georgia Conference Unanimously Votes to Enter Movement to Promote Christian Education.

FINE ADDRESS MADE
BY BISHOP CANDLER

Needs of Southern Methodists Shown in Stereopticon Lecture Given by Dr. R. H. Bennett.

BY DR. THOMAS M. ELLIOTT.
The one big outstanding feature of the entire current session of the North Georgia conference was brought to a triumphant close late Thursday night, when the conference, composed of ministers and leading laymen from every district in the north Georgia territory, unanimously voted that this conference enter into the church-wide movement of the denomination for the promotion of Christian education, heartily assuming its quota of $1,765,000 in the financing of the great work.

The largest audience that has yet attended the conference was present, and not a dissenting voice was raised in disapproval of the vast task the Southern Methodists are undertaking, and which is believed will go far toward advancing the south than any one movement in church or state in many years past.

The secret cause of Georgia's backwardness in development was declared to be the failure to develop the intellects of her people. Southern Methodism now would undertake as never undertaken before by any denomination to develop this intelligence, and have that development take place under Christian domination.

Christian Education Day.
Thursday was Christian education day in the sessions of the North Georgia conference assembled at Wesley Memorial church, and the entire conference program for the day was given over to that one consideration, three sittings being given the matter, making the first time in the history of the conference that an entire day of three sittings was devoted exclusively to Christian education.

The only matters allowed to come in that did not pertain to Christian education was the report of the investigating committee appointed Wednesday in the case of Rev. B. F. Fraser, pastor of Wesley Memorial church, which reported that no trial was necessary, and the election of Rev. S. E. Wassen and Colonel W. O. Jones to fill vacancies on the board of missions.

Several visiting ministers were presented to the conference, as follows: Rev. J. W. Lewis, of the Florida conference, superintendent of Methodist work among Latins in Key West; Dr. J. A. Harmon and Rev. C. M. Ledbetter, of the South Georgia conference, and Chaplain J. A. Randolph, of the North Mississippi conference.

Having in mind the fact that the day was to be devoted to Christian education, Bishop Candler selected a passage of Scripture for the morning reading that was appropriate for the occasion, and upon which he made timely comments appealing for the church to go forward in the providential task now assigned it.

Testimony of Their Faith.
The bishop thought that, if the fathers in the days of the Martin Van Buren panic, when there were but scarcely 40,000 Methodists in Georgia, were courageous enough to found Wesleyan and Emory colleges, the half a million Methodist adherents in Georgia today should not be less determined to

That the lure of the song of sirens, harmonized with the potent influence of the almighty dollar and intoxicating liquor, has played an important part in the proceedings of lobbyists in promoting the passage of new county bills in the state legislature, but that an investigation by the grand jury would be preferable to an extraordinary session unless some method to provide relief for the financial distress of state educational institutions was included, was the general opinion expressed to the Constitution Thursday night by a number of representatives.

Robert Emmett Harvey Acts as Master of Ceremonies—Fine Address Is Delivered by Edgar Watkins.

BY PAUL WARWICK.

Their hearts joined in reverent thankfulness to those souls who sped to their final reward during the pain of the war that rocked the world, more than ten thousand Atlantans thronged streets, sidewalks, windows and roofs in Five Points' neighborhood at high noon Thursday, while simple but impressive ceremonies were media for the expression of tenderly cherished memory.

Despite the magnitude of the assemblage that surged over every available square inch of standing space on the big intersection of Marietta beyond Broad, up Peachtree, both ways to Auburn avenue, on the north and the viaduct on the south, down Edgewood and Decatur—there was a silent and respectful attitude of praise that completely permeated the great demonstration. Gray-haired, bent old heroes of the sixties' blue and gray jostled kindly for room and some sort of vision with ruddy-cheeked boys and girls from the grammar grades. The occasion was universal and all embracing.

Flag Is Unfurled.
When, to the inspiring strains of "The Star Spangled Banner," the giant garrison flag was pulled to the top of the flagpole, and there was unfurled slowly and gracefully by a breeze so gentle and effective as to seem a special bit of divine stagecraft—the crowd stood with bared heads. Soldiers in uniform stiffened to the hand salute.

On the incomplete seventh story of a new Peachtree building, two workmen stood at rigid attention, their feet planted on the perilous edge of a steel girder, thrillingly high above the thickly clustered people on the streets below.

The climax of effectiveness came, however, when breaths were caught and held with the spell cast on the throng when the two regular army bugles blew "taps." The weird, halting notes of the army's most solemn strain went straight to the hearts of the multitude and accidentally, but just as fittingly—the chorus of negro voices by the flagpole suddenly began a melancholy chant which seemed to have been set to the melody of "taps."

The speakers of the occasion and the distinguished guests sat on a platform which had been constructed on two army trucks and rolled by them into place. This feature of

Delayed Cold Wave Now in Our Midst, Says Forecaster

"38 Degrees and Frost by Friday Night, With No Sign of Rain in at Least Three Days," He States.

C. F. von Herrmann was found in his office late Thursday afternoon wearing an overcoat turned up at the collar and a broad grin on his face. "That cold wave we've been predicting has arrived—it was just a little delayed," was his greeting.

"Yes, sir, 38 degrees and frost Friday night," he declared, with evident pleasure, "and no sign of rain for at least three days. Splendid weather." Mr. von Herrmann's jubilation is easily understood when one remembers that he plays against the odds of the elements. The weather man says that there will be no freezing, but that decidedly cooler temperatures will prevail through Sunday. "Next week is a little far ahead to discuss," he said, "but I believe that this snap will moderate by Monday or Tuesday, according to precedent."

From down in the folds of his overcoat, Mr. von Herrmann delivered a eulogy upon Atlanta's superb fall weather, declaring that today, as well as Saturday and Sunday, will be perfect examples. "There will be no extreme wind—just cool breezes from the northwest."

The traffic officer at Marietta and Broad last evening was also enveloped in an overcoat, but differed a bit on the subject of breezes. "You say northwest breezes?" he snapped. "A west wind, I call it."

On November 3, 0.24 inches of rain fell, which constitutes the total for the month to date. With a high water mark of 57 inches already credited locally, Mr. von Herrmann states that a drought for the remainder of the year would reduce the record to normal.

Decline in temperatures, clear weather and moderate breezes are forecasted for the South Atlantic states generally.

STATE "DRY" LAW NOT SUPERSEDED BY U. S. AMENDMENT
Georgia's prohibition law is not superseded by the eighteenth amendment, but congress and the states have concurrent jurisdiction, according to a decision rendered Thursday by the supreme court of the state in the case of Jones vs. Hicks from the city court of Macon. The powers of congress and the states are equal, read the decision in affirming the verdict of the lower court, "and may be concurrently exercised by their legitimate spheres."

KNIGHT IS FREED AFTER JURY IS OUT ONLY SHORT TIME

Case Given Into Hands of Jurors at 1:15 O'Clock and Verdict Is Returned at 3.

WIFE IN COURTROOM WHEN HE GETS LIBERTY

Statement Made by Prisoner Was His Only Defense, No Witnesses Being Introduced for the Defendant.

J. C. Knight, former street car conductor, who shot and killed James M. Means, transportation superintendent of the Georgia Railway and Power company, October 13, was acquitted Thursday afternoon by a jury in the criminal division of the Fulton superior court, after the jury had been out about an hour and a half, during which time they ate lunch. The case went to the jury at 1:15 and they deliberated until 2 o'clock, when Judge John D. Humphries, who was presiding in the case, ordered them out to lunch. As soon as the jurors returned to the courthouse shortly before 3 o'clock, the verdict was made.

The trial of Knight consumed two days. When the verdict was returned the defendant received it calmly. His wife was with him at the time. He thanked the jurors as they filed out of the jury box.

The statement made by Knight late Wednesday evening was his only defense. No witnesses were introduced by the defendant. The defense claimed that the shooting was accidental and was committed when Means attempted to take from Knight a pistol, which the latter had drawn out of his pocket and had turned on himself.

Attorneys Murphy Holloway and Walter A. Sims, who represented the defendant, made their arguments Thursday morning. Mr. Holloway related the events leading up to the killing. He told the jury that if the witnesses told the truth regarding the relative positions of Knight and Means in the latter's office the day of the shooting, that the shooting could not have been otherwise than accidental.

The state contended that Knight drew his pistol and deliberately shot Means and that it was a case of cold-blooded murder. Solicitor John A. Boykin represented the state.

Washington, November 11.—The state department made inquiry today of the British government as to whether any Americans have been injured in the disturbances in Ireland. Home Brewing Placed Under Prohibition Ban By Bone Dry Officials Order Is Issued Forbidding the Sale of Hops and Malt to Others Than Bakers and Confectioners.

ORDER TO PROVOKE
WAVE OF LITIGATION

Manufacturers of Cereal Beverages Have Complained Against Tremendous Growth of Brewing as a Home Industry.

Washington, November 11.—(By the Associated Press.)—Home brewing was brought actively under the prohibition ban today when it was learned that enforcement officials had ruled against the sale of hops and malt to others than bakers and confectioners. Great secrecy surrounded the prohibition bureau's action, but it was ascertained definitely that such instructions had been issued.

Details of the order were lacking. The only admission made by prohibition officials in the absence of Commissioner Kramer was that the Volstead act had been construed to mean that the sale of hops and malt as component parts of home-made beer were without the pale of the law and their sale must stop. Enforcement officials throughout the country have been notified of the government's determination, but they have not been supplied with the technical language of the decision.

It Is Up to Houston.
The construction of the law which resulted in the new order was made nearly two months ago. At that time officials having it in charge started a document through the regular procedure from which it emerges as a treasury decision. But it has not yet been approved by Secretary Houston. Further than to admit existence of the proposed treasury ruling, officials declined to discuss it.

Emphatic denial was made to the report that the bureau had considered or had included in the order other articles used in home brewing. Officials likewise denied that the provision was to be made for the licensing of even the bakers and confectioners, apparently the only persons who will be able to purchase hops and malt.

There were persistent rumors at both the prohibition and internal revenue headquarters that the manufacturers of cereal beverages, containing less than one half of one per cent of alcohol, against the tremendous growth of brewing as a home industry. On this phase of the situation, officials also refused comment. It was understood, however, that the beverage manufacturers had based a complaint on a steady but rapid increase of their sales which they charged to the

RED CROSS HEADS ARE DISAPPOINTED

Thousands of Men, Who Are Well Dressed, Fail to Contribute—Atlanta Is Behind on First Day's Work.

That the results of the first day's work of enrolling members in the fourth annual Red Cross roll call were extremely disappointing, was announced last night by Julian V. Boehm, president of the Civitan club and general chairman of the enrollment.

Mr. Boehm gave out the following statement:
"The work of the women soliciting members, and the generous public spirit of the women who enrolled as members, were the only thing that saved the first day of the roll call from failure."

"Apparently, there are thousands of men in Atlanta who cannot give a dollar for a year's membership in the Red Cross. They are well-dressed and look well fed and well groomed, but when asked to join the Red Cross they solemnly affirm that they haven't a dollar."

"It was a striking contrast between these men and the women and girls who were canvassing in the stores and offices. In almost nine cases out of ten they gladly gave a dollar for a membership in the Red Cross, and they did not claim to be 'dead broke.'"

Has Led South Before.
"Atlanta heretofore has always led the south in the three preceding Red Cross roll calls, but we are going to fetch up at the foot of the list unless we set a better response on Friday and Saturday than we got on Thursday. Cities like Augusta, Macon, Montgomery and Jacksonville, with a half or a third of our population, are going to beat us. Atlanta is the general southern headquarters of the Red Cross."

The scope of Red Cross work for public health and along other lines is larger here than in any southern city. During the war all Atlantans had an opportunity of observing the magnificent work of the Red Cross among the men in uniform. Surely no southern city is in a position to appreciate the Red Cross so much as Atlanta.

"The roll call, of course, will get forward Friday and Saturday with increased energy and renewed determination. We are not going to fail. We refuse to believe that the men who turned us down on Thursday are typical of the general public attitude of Atlanta towards the world's greatest organization of mercy and relief and human service."

Mrs. Samuel Lumpkin, general chairman of the women's division, was full of praise for the splendid work of the women and girls. She said:
"Too much cannot be said of the wonderful work of the women at

HARDING OUTLINES HIS FOREIGN POLICY AIMING FOR PEACE

President-Elect, However, Says American Nationality Will Be Guarded and American Citizens Protected Wherever They Go.

NO ALOOFNESS SOUGHT
BY THE UNITED STATES

And No Obligation Shirked—"But We Built in Nationality," Says Harding, "And We Do Not Mean to Surrender It."

Brownsville, Texas, November 11. (By the Associated Press.)—Facing a border crowd in which were many citizens of Mexico and several officials of the Mexican government, President-elect Harding proposed here today a foreign policy directed toward peace and friendship, but demanding always full protection of American nationality and of American citizens wherever they may go.

The address, which was his first prepared public utterance since his election to the presidency, was delivered from a stand on the Fort Brown parade grounds, within a few hundred yards of the international boundary. The cavalry sabers of the Fort Brown garrison rattled about him, but in a place of honor on his right was also a part of the Mexican garrison of Matamoros, paying a visit of compliment and courtesy to the next American president.

Mexico Not Mentioned.
In the course of his address, devoted jointly to the significance of the Armistice day anniversary and to the country's foreign relations, he did not mention Mexico by name nor did he refer directly to the league of nations.

"We crave fraternity," he said, "we wish amicable relations everywhere where we offer peace and choose to promote it, but we demand our freedom and our own America. I believe an America eminent on the seas, respected in every avenue of trade, will be safer at home and greater in influence throughout the world. I like to think of an American whose citizenship is ever seeking the greatest development and enlarged resources and widened influences of the republic, and I like to think of a government which protects its citizens wherever they go on a lawful mission, anywhere under the shining sun."

Mr. Harding also suggested that the nation learn a lesson of preparedness from the experience of the world war, and spoke a word for waterway development. He praised the efforts of Texas citizens toward the development of adequate port facilities at the mouth of the Rio Grande, declaring his vacation visit to Fort Tular and brought a new realization of the economic possibilities of the state.

Crowd Came by Thousands.
Although primarily an Armistice day celebration, the program of address and parade which preceded it, was also planned as a welcome to the president-elect, and as a boost for the Rio Grande deep waterways movement.

The crowd came by thousands from many of the Rio Grande Valley cities and from across the border, and there were in the day's events many elements to emphasize the unity and international friendship.

In the parade, which included an elaborate pageant representing historical events, the parade was a welcome to the president-elect, and as a boost for the Rio Grande deep waterways movement.

Brownsville, and American Consul Wilson, of Matamoros, rode together, each carrying the flag of his nation. Many other Mexican flags were in the procession and the military band of the Matamoros garrison had a place just behind the Fourth cavalry squadron, which acted as the president-elect's escort.

General Lopez, military governor of the Matamoros district, was one of those who sat on the speakers' stand.

Before Mr. Harding's turn on the program, there were addresses by E. L. Jessup, vice president of the Brownsville Chamber of Commerce, who spoke for the waterways movement, and Del S. Perkins, commander and spokesman of the local American Legion post. By special request of the president-elect the Matamoros military band, stationed near him, played "Mexico Allegretto," just before he began speaking.

Text of Speech.
The text of Senator Harding's speech follows in part:
"November the 11th has an abiding significance to America and the world. For America it sealed our capacity to defend our national rights and stamped our effectiveness in aiding to preserve the established order of world civilization; for the world it marked a new order for humanity, and for all time it was a lesson in the power of the American spirit, and a new measure of American resources.

"Whatever the world may have thought of us before, however incorrectly we may have been appraised, the world has come to know that selflessness is not a trait of our national character, that commercialism does not engross us, that neutrality was conceived in fairness—not in fear—and that when our national rights are threatened and our national honor is in jeopardy, we are resolved to defend, and ever will.

More, we gave to humanity an example of unselfishness which it only half appraised before misunderstandings led to confusion.

"We helped to win the war, unaided and unmortgaged. We fought with the allied powers, but we were only an associated power, and were never committed, if fully aware of them, to the compacts of the alliance.

Why We Fought.
"History will record it correctly, no matter how much beautiful sentiment has beclouded our purposes in the world war. We did not fight to make the world safe for democracy, though we were its best exemplars. Nor did we fight for humanity's sake, no matter how such a cause impelled. Democracy was threatened and humanity was dying long before American indignation called for the republic's defense.

But we fought for the one supreme cause which inspires men to offer all for country and the flag, and we fought as becomes a free America, and dropped the sword, and stifled greed, when the victory for defense was won.

"We proved anew that here is free and ample America, which does not ask, but freely gives. We were Americans in name before the world war made us American in fact, not a collection of peoples, but one people, with one purpose, one confidence, one aspiration and one flag.

"We learned a lesson, too, of transcending importance. Righteousness and justice are not in themselves a guaranty of national security. We must ever be strong in peace, foremost in industry, eminent in agriculture, ample in transportation. Better transportation on land, an adequate merchant marine would have speeded our participation and shortened the war.

"I believe in America, eminent on the high seas, respected in every avenue of trade, will be able to make the world safe for democracy throughout the world.

His Thought of America.
"I like to think of an America whose citizens are ever seeking the greater good, and whose resources and widened influence of the republic, and I like to think of the citizens wherever they go on a lawful mission, anywhere under the stars of the American flag.

"All the way from home in Ohio to the furthest port on the Gulf I have seen among the people who came to give us kindly greetings scores of stalwart, virile, young Americans who served their country so gallantly and effectively at home and overseas. One must have cause to renewed pride in the character of these men, in their readiness and capacity to serve, in the calm fortitude of their manhood, in their new baptism of Americanism. These soldiers of the republic, like their fathers, believe in an America of civil and human and religious liberty; they believe in America as the American ideal. They believe in America first, for it is in America that their hopes and inspirations center.

"We are only in the morn of national life. Who dares to prophesy, in quaffing the cup of optimism, what the future has in store? One needs only to see the magic valley, where the possibilities are not yet touched, to see how prophecy falls short. Texas is ample for an empire of fifty millions. Ships of modern commerce ought to enliven Laguna Madre lake where primitive craft marked activities of many years ago. Texas alone is incalculable. Agriculture, transportation, factories, commerce—all are growing in the gleam of the Lone Star, and adding to the strength of our common country. We have only to go on, independent and free, untrammelled and unburdened, to write the supreme fulfillment.

"We choose no aloofness, we shrink no obligation, we forsake no friends. But we built in nationality and we do not mean to surrender."

the booths, and canvassing from store to store and office to office, and working in all other departments of the roll call.

"We did not call on a single Atlanta woman who turned us down, likewise, practically every woman organization in the city has responded in fine spirit. Many of these organizations volunteered their services without being solicited. We urge all women to stay on the job through Friday and Saturday, if not longer. All large industries will be given an opportunity to enroll 100 per cent.

A general meeting of workers in every division is to be held at 12:30 o'clock today in the chamber of commerce assembly hall, where luncheon will be served. W. R. C. Smith will make the leading address, which will be short and to the point.

Until long after dark last night the weary women workers were standing in line at headquarters waiting to turn in their collections and make their reports. Some were discouraged by the rebuffs they had received from thoughtless men, but in the main they were cheerful and game, and ready to go forth Friday morning for the second day's hard work.

Building Open to Solicitors.
Two Red Cross solicitors were ordered out of the Hurt building by the manager, acting upon a general policy prohibiting canvassers within the building, following personal difficulties between the solicitors and a tenant arising over alleged discourtesy on the part of the latter.

Rumors resulted from the episode to the effect that Red Cross workers had been barred from soliciting memberships in the Hurt building. Joel Hurt denied these rumors Thursday night and pointed out the fact that space had been allowed the organization for booths in the lobby of the building and further declared that the Hurt building will be open to all Red Cross solicitors in the future.

growth of home brewing. They were understood to have protested to the internal revenue bureau that enforcement agents were enforcing the alcoholic restrictions on them while the home brewer with the aid of hops and malt has been able to produce a beverage approximating old-fashioned beer.

Litigation Is Expected.
Officials anticipated that the ban a wave of litigation as to the government's rights. They claimed, however, that their decision had been preceded by a thorough study of the questions involved and said they were prepared to meet the attack.

Sections of the act specifically prohibiting the sale of beer as well as the formal advertising of recipes for its manufacture were cited as one of the foundations for the ruling. The policy which expect to be tested in court was whether the food value of the two articles banned would be destroyed by a court, permit their continued sale as such despite their use as a basis for beverage making. The line of demarcation between the use of the two articles which cannot be sold, and fruits, sugars and syrups was said to be regarded as rather indefinite, but those having the question in charge believed they were on safe ground.

JOHN SULLIVAN HELD FOR AUTO ACCIDENT

Following an inquest held over the body of Robert E. Gale, of Waverly, N. Y., a traveling salesman, who was killed in an automobile accident early Tuesday morning, John Sullivan, of 8 Williams street, a passenger in the automobile, was ordered held to the Fulton county grand jury by the coroner.

The coroner's jury returned a verdict that Mr. Gale met his death as a result of the accident, which occurred when the automobile in which he was riding struck a telephone pole near the corner of Westwood and Cascade avenues. There were no eye-witnesses to the accident and the only other passenger in the car. He stated that he had been drinking and that he had a very dim recollection of what happened.

"POLITICAL RING" RULES CONFERENCE SAYS SWAGGERTY
Rev. J. D. Swaggerty, former superintendent of Wesley Memorial church Sunday school, feels that the entire matter of his charges against Rev. E. F. Fraser, pastor of that church, was not given fullest consideration by the North Georgia conference now in session. He still thinks his accusations can be substantiated, but declares he will not push them further, as he deems it useless.

In a dictated statement to The Constitution Thursday night, Mr. Swaggerty said:
"The North Georgia conference is ruled by a political ring and the only reason Mr. Fraser was exonerated by the conference is that all evidence save my own, was excluded. W. S. Bond, of Greensburg & Bond, can make a statement that will sustain my claims. I was warned by friends that I could not get a hearing, because I am an outsider to the political bosses. I shall not push the matter further, as it would be useless. I shall remain in Atlanta and continue my work."

MOTHER WANTS HOME FOR TWO DAUGHTERS
The Constitution is in receipt of a touching letter from Mrs. Phelia Randolph, of Route No. 1, Mill Springs, N. C., requesting aid in helping her to find a home for her two little girls, aged 4 and 7 years.

Mrs. Randolph explains that she is sick and must go to the hospital, and is consequently unable to care for her little ones. Mrs. Randolph requests that any kind-hearted person who is able to offer a home to the children will communicate with her at once.

Bomb That Scattered Death in Wall Street Laid to Union Labor

The Evening World Alleges Explosion Was Act of Reprisal Against President of Building Trades Council.

New York, November 11.—Responsibility for the disastrous Wall street explosion last September was charged today to individual laboring men or labor sympathizers by The New York Evening World. The paper, however, admitted it could not explain presence of threats signed "Anarchist Fighters" found in a mail box near the scene of the explosion.

In a three-page story, the paper announced that the mystery of the blast that killed nearly 40 persons and injured 150 more, had been "solved." The theory advanced was that the death wagon in which the bomb had exploded had not been sent into the financial district to terrorize "the capitalist class," but it had been intended as a reprisal against Robert P. Brindell, president of the Building Trades Council.

oil, and eighty-five "Brindell workers" employed in demolishing the stock exchange building. Held up on the way, the bomb was believed by the paper to have exploded before it reached its destination.

Named One Union.
Seeking to link the explosion with the "building trust" graft now being investigated by a joint legislative committee, the paper, naming a house wreckers' union, said:

"The Evening World here presents proof that 1,800 men, nearly all foreign born—sober, industrious, efficient and well disciplined—have within a space of eighteen months been subjected to an amazing conspiracy of injustice, and the explosion was the culmination of this tyranny. The buildings trades graft was responsible for the crime. The Evening World does not charge the union, as a union, with responsibility. It was the work of individuals, possibly inside the union, possibly the work of sympathizers."

"Further proofs are presented that the wrath and resentment of these working men and their fellows who knew of their tragic losing fight to avert vagrancy and starvation in days of overflowing labor opportunity was centered not only on their arch oppressor, Robert P. Brindell, dictator of the building trades council, but upon house wrecker contractors."

The police and agents of the department of justice, the paper asserts, today are "busy looking through the membership rolls of house wreckers' union No. 95, to find men who might have been so false to modern labor union principles and the teachings of Gompers and Frayne, and their own outspoken advocate of law and order. William Zaranko, as to blacken their organization's good name by a crime of private vengeance as horrible and wicked as the Wall street explosion."

District Attorney Swann this afternoon announced he had invited every person mentioned in the newspaper story to be at his office tomorrow afternoon. He added that if they had any information likely to result in indictment of guilty parties, he would immediately place it before the September regular grand jury, which has already investigated the disaster.

Zaranko Denies Story.
Zaranko, who is president of the House Wreckers' union, the labor organization mentioned in the newspaper article, indignantly denied that his organization or any of its members had anything to do with the explosion.

Addressing newspaper men in the city hall during a recess of the joint committee's investigation of the "alleged trust" in which he has appeared as a witness, Zaranko declared the theory advanced by the newspaper was "false and absolutely absurd."

"To begin with, in showing how ridiculous such a suggestion is," he said, "workmen of the House Wreckers' union never use dynamite. Our men had access to none of the explosives and none was being employed on the Wall street job."

"Furthermore, our men fight clean and we're willing to prove this by testifying either before the Lockwood committee or any properly constituted court."

Efforts to Suppress Evidence.
The story stressed and charged that efforts had been made by unnamed persons to prevent evidence relating to the catastrophe from coming to light.

It was brought out that a man who had alleged to have claimed ownership of the horse, which drew the death wagon, immediately after the blast, and who spoke of the "boss" who had directed him to drive the conveyance to Wall and Broad streets, had disappeared. One of the men to whom he told his story and who persisted in repeating it, was the victim of an attempted assassination within a month, according to the story, despite the fact that he had "gone dumb."

This man, at whom three shots were fired one night in October, the story declared, was Raymond Clark, chief foreman of a gang of house wreckers who were tearing down the stock exchange annex.

Clark, it continues, is a "Brindell lieutenant," though employed by a firm of building contractors.

"Within the present week," the story continued, "The Evening World has found two business men of high standing to whom Clark told it the afternoon of the explosion, and to whom he mentioned it again when explaining to them the attempt to assassinate him three weeks ago. And so certain are these two business men of the justification for Clark's frightened silence that they would not talk to the investigator at all until they had a promise guaranteed by higher authority than that of the reporter that their names would not be published."

Shooting of Clark.
It told of the circumstances surrounding the shooting of Clark. The foreman was accompanied on the night of October 17 by a foreman subordinate, James Reilly. Coming out of the garage at Reilly's Long Island city home, where it was quite dark, the two were confronted without warning by three strangers, one of whom asked:

"Which of you is Reilly?"

"I'm Reilly," was the reply of the assistant foreman.

"Then you are Clark?" sharply interrogated the first speaker. "I'm Clark," answered the man who had repeated the tale of the cart driver.

Instantly the shots rang out. Clark fell to the ground, and before either he or his companion could recover from the shock of the sudden attack, the gunmen had escaped.

A heavy, old-fashioned watch in Clark's left breast pocket saved his life by deflecting the first bullet. A second grazed his shoulder, while the third went wild.

No Tangible Clue.
Washington, November 11.—Federal agents have developed no evidence, department of justice officials said tonight, as to the Wall street bomb explosion tending to substantiate the solution of the mystery published today by The New York Evening World, and linking the explosion with the "building trust graft" under investigation in that city.

Robert T. Scott, assistant to the attorney general, said that agents of the department working on the explosion had not found thus far any tangible clue having any bearing in the direction suggested by the newspaper. The government still hopes to solve the problem, he added, but its expectations lay in another direction. If the criminals ever are found.

FIELD ARTILLERY HELD CONVENTION HERE ON THURSDAY

The first annual reunion of the Three Hundred and Nineteenth Field artillery, former unit of the Eighty-second division, convened in Atlanta Thursday.

The business meeting was held at 10 o'clock at the Piedmont hotel. The afternoon program was featured by automobile trips to various points in and about Atlanta, followed by a banquet at the Capital City club.

The Three Hundred and Nineteenth Field artillery, organized as the heaviest artillery unit of the One Hundred and Fifty-seventh E. A. brigade of the Eighty-second division, Training at Camp Gordon and Marietta, it was sent overseas with the division. After a short training period in southern France, the regiment was sent into the lines on the 10th of August, 1918. After the St. Mihiel engagement it was transferred to the Argonne forest, where action was continued from October 7 to November 8. This regiment remained in the lines in support of the Eighteenth division. B. L. Milling represents the plain after the Eighty-second was withdrawn, giving it a period of continuous service which compares with that of any other unit in the United States army.

The personnel of the regiment is made up of men from all over the country, and the attendance at this reunion is composed of men from north, east, west and south.

Fate Has Nothing On the Person Who Becomes A Master of Money

Here is a thought about the workings of Fate which should impress you deeply.

You, yourself, are Fate. You are the Master of your own destiny.

Since nothing plays so important a part in the attaining of success as money, then your attitude towards money will be a determining factor in your life.

The person who masters temptations to spend and who keeps his dollars busy is always ready to take advantage of opportunity, and such a person realizes this fact about money: "It isn't what a dollar will buy but what it will earn that counts in the long run."

How often you have wished that you could indulge in the strenuous exercise of out door sports with the vigor and enthusiasm of youth! But the end of the week finds you all in—you are tired, listless and lack the energy to go out for a vigorous walk or a round of the links—or any other exercise that requires much physical exertion. Many a man, even in his middle forties, has a vague feeling that he is "getting old"—and right at a time when he should be at his very best physically. And he is growing old, not in the sense that the years are pressing heavily upon him—but in the sense that his vital forces are wasting away faster than Nature replaces the worn out tissues.

Thousands—yes millions—of people find themselves in this condition early in life. And there is no excuse for it. You can check that tendency to grow old. You can carry your youth with its joys and enthusiasm into your 70's and 80's. But you must give Nature all the help you can. The best assistance you can find—assistance of a sound, constructive character is in the use of stated that the boundary line agreed upon was virtually that proposed in the minimum demands of the Italian government.

The new line, as explained, runs through the Julian Alps and down the Dalmatian coast, well to the eastward of the original line proposed by President Wilson and closely approximates the line laid down in the treaty of London signed between Italy and France and Great Britain in 1914.

State department officials would not say whether this settlement would be objectionable to the American government, explaining that they had not had time to study the matter in detail as the embassy communication was only then being translated from the Italian. It was said that a summary of the dispatch would be given out, but subsequently it was announced that it would not be made public at this time.

Under the agreement as explained at the embassy Fiume becomes an independent state without any control by the league of nations, but as was proposed by President Wilson. It was stated that Fiume immediately would undertake negotiations of customs agreements so that commerce could be freely developed.

PROBE OF GRAFT

Barrett, of Pike county, in the shape of affidavits, much interest is being manifested throughout the state in each new development of the situation. Sensational news evidence is expected to be introduced during the next few days by Mr. Barrett, who declares he has new affidavits and will employ a special prosecutor to push his charges.

Lots of Money Spent.
"There is no question in my mind that there has been a lot of money spent in getting new counties created, and, personally, I think the matter should be investigated," said Robert W. Barnes, one of the Bibb county representatives. "I do not see, however, what the legislature itself can do about it or what could be accomplished by calling an extraordinary session."

"It is a matter for the grand jury if there has been unfair influence used, and it should take that course," he continued, "and a full exposure made of it. There is no question but that a powerful lobby has been maintained for the creation of new counties, but it is my opinion that the lobbyists have over-estimated their influence with members of the legislature."

"It may have been possible for them to have influenced a few members with whisky and women, as charged, but there have at no time been enough members of the legislature subject to those influences to control the actions of the body," he concluded.

Do Not Favor Extra Session.
Members of the legislature from

Laurens county evince different attitudes toward the proposed extra session, expressing deep concern over the condition of schools and desirous of providing relief, while they are shocked at the recent charges against legislative methods in general.

State Senator Fred Kea in speaking of the action of the 1920 legislature relative to schools declares that there was no better time to "let them know that it was not child's play with the legislature."

He thinks the lesson in economy which the legislature set last session should not be vitiated by an extra session to appropriate the sum asked by the schools. "I don't see anything to be gained from an extra session just now," said Mr. Kea. "I feel like the action of the last session demonstrated clearly we must set a more rigid example of economy relative to public affairs."

"While I favor caring for all our public institutions, the legislature came near giving the schools for 1919 and 1920 all they asked for and when they came back in 1920 and asked an increase I felt that there was no better time to set an example of rigid economy and let them know that it was not child's play with the legislature."

Haps Marion Jackson.
Representative L. Q. Stubbs sees no need for calling an extra session to probe graft charges, but would like to assist the schools, but "would not dignify Marion Jackson or any other man by calling an extra session of the legislature to investigate such charges as he has brought."

"I am perfectly willing to call an extra session for relieving the financial distress of the schools," said Mr. Stubbs.

Representative W. B. Rogers would help the schools if he could "see any way to get the money." He admits having heard something about graft charges last summer and feels that if there is anything to them that an investigation should be called at once, but denies all personal knowledge of such.

"I heard a good deal of these graft charges during the session last summer, but knew nothing of them personally. If there is anything to them they should be investigated at once and the matter not left over. The schools should be given relief and I am willing to give it to them provided we can find where to get the money. They really need it, but until they show us a source of revenue from which the money can come, we cannot appropriate it. That is the way we looked at it last summer and I hold the same opinion now," he said.

Position of Chatham.
Chatham legislators are not enthusiastic over an extra session, according to statements given by them to a Constitution correspondent last night in Savannah. Asked his opinion as to the desirability of calling an extra session of the legislature, Representative Ralston Fallgout said that in his personal opinion there can be nothing accomplished by an extra session except the additional expense of such session as the appropriations already made exceed the prospective revenue of the state.

Representative Alex A. Lawrence said he had not considered the proposal at all, but believed that the decision for or against an extra session is up to the governor and other officials familiar with the financial conditions of the state.

Representative J. H. Eve and the state senator who is not in Savannah, could not be communicated with tonight.

Declaring that he and the Municipal league were well satisfied with the situation created by the session, changes in The Bulletin Monday, Marion Jackson refused late last night to make any comment on the statement of Marion Jackson that if Jackson will come out in the open and say he directed those charges at me, I'll beat him out of him."

launch upon an underfaking that would prove a testimony to their faith in God and love for His service.

He urged that, as we have nothing today but is rooted in the affairs of the past, so that the future may be well, we should devote ourselves to the things that make for good civilization for tomorrow.

Dr. H. N. Snyder, associate director of the Christian education movement and president of World council of churches, was in the audience and spoke of the objectives of the great plan. Dr. Snyder said, in part:

"The movement which is one authorized by the general conference, and is but the second half of the great Christian education movement, and ought to be to speak of the message to the hearts of our people, that there may be born a conviction as to what we want to do and ought to do, with a consequent faith and determination to do, consecrating our substance to it."

Beneficiaries of Movement.
"The beneficiaries of this movement will be our institutions for training Christian workers and ministers, our schools, our churches, our homes, our villages, our cities, our nations, our world. We want to give an adequate conception of Christian education and correlate and co-ordinate all our existing educational agencies."

The highest objective in mind is to open the spiritual life of our people, overcome the blasphemous heathen of lost fathers, and give to the people a realization that Christian education is for aking of a man for service."

Dr. A. F. Watkins, president of Millsaps college, Jackson, Miss., spoke of the compelling appeal of the great Christian education movement. He argued that education is the most wonderful thing in the world, since by it a modicum of information is given whereby strength of mind is developed to enable it to draw an inference. The difference in ideals of education, he urged, constitutes the great difference in education. He thought that education should not only train the mind and hand and body, but also should reach the heart and incline the life to be of service to humanity, rather than only for selfish interests exclusively.

Dr. W. B. Beauchamp, director general of the centenary movement, spoke of the part in the centenary program occupied by the education movement. He declared the same crises of consciousness that confronted the leaders in the centenary work now confronts the leaders in the educational undertaking, but denied the truth of the crisis.

"The Southern Methodist denomination has never faltered in the face of a difficult task," he said, "and this Christian education movement is to us a divine command that no recession be played, but that we advance with faith, courage and consecration to the completion of the magnificent program, not only increasing the intrinsic spiritual values and educational ideals in the homes, but also overcoming the dearth of untrained ministers in our church."

Dr. Dickey Presides.
At the afternoon session, presided over by Dr. J. E. Dickey, in the absence of Bishop Candler, Dr. R. H. Bennett, director of ministerial training, of Richmond, spoke of life service that the education movement seeks to inspire, and Mrs. L. G. Johnson, of Griffin, who is a lay member of the conference and prominent in woman's work in the church, spoke of the result of the movement as affecting the work of the Woman's council.

Dr. Bennett declared the purpose of the great movement to be simply to unite knowledge and vital piety, and to seek to procure trained workers for the ever-enlarging work demanded of southern Methodists. He gave special emphasis to the need of trained, Christian workers, stating that the southern Methodist connection now employs 1,668 supplies, 42 of which are in this conference. In India, he stated, 150,000 converts are denied admittance into the churches annually, for lack of trained teachers and workers to care for them.

Mrs. Johnson said she, at first feared to speak on the subject of Christian education, but now felt inspired by the changed facial expressions of the conference members. She quoted a German proverb, "Whatever you would have in a nation, put it into your schools," and told of her personal observation in Belgium a year ago, in which she saw a wonderful contrast between the fruits of German education and that of America. In that unhappy land she saw where Germans had devastated the country and ravished the people, and where Americans were making every effort to restore them to their former living and make them contented.

Keep Fit For Success In Life

BY DR. A. B. BABCOCK.

You can take your boy and out of him make anything you like if you can get him under good self-discipline. All roads are open to the man who is strong and fit. Uncle Sam took "our boys"—those slabsided, stooped, hollow-cheated youths—and made of them vigorous, well-developed well set-up and courageous men. Take the right way! Train yourself and your children to take proper exercise, drink plenty of water and keep the system clean. Your doctor will tell you that anything from a common cold or headache to the most serious illness may result from the absorption of poisons in the intestines.

The first principle is to keep the system clean. Occasionally see that the boy or girl, as well as yourself, has an internal bath. It may be with castor oil or a tiny pill of May-apple, aloin and jalap, which is sold by druggists as Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

If a cold starts with a cough and it persists, then some local treatment for this condition should be taken. A well-known alternative extract which has been on the market for a great many years, and which has been highly recommended by thousands of users, is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. This tonic compound is composed of an extract of roots and herbs, without alcohol, and has a soothing effect upon the mucous membrane, allays the irritation and at the same time works in the proper and reasonable way, at the seat of the trouble—the stagnated or poisoned blood.—(adv.)

of America. She stated that 85 per cent of our teachers are women, most of whom have not received adequate training, yet were in position to vitally influence the life and character of our coming generations. She blessed that the movement can be made a success, and reminded the ministers that as it was expected of them that they keep up the morale of the country during the war, they carry on and keep up the morale of the Methodists in this enlarged and unselfish undertaking.

Large Audience Present.
At the Thursday night sitting of the conference the largest audience yet attending was present to witness the inauguration of the great education movement in north Georgia.

A stereopticon lecture was given by Dr. R. H. Bennett, in which the needs and opportunities of the 89 southern Methodist institutions were forcibly presented.

Following the stereopticon lecture Bishop Candler delivered one of the most earnest addresses he has ever been heard to deliver in behalf of the larger undertaking.

"The great war taught us two lessons: the value of education in general, the peril of education separated from right motives," he said. "We live today in a high-powered world, and unless we have a high-powered religion our high power resources is to develop the people, for there is no progress without training the intellect. This is amply demonstrated by the state of Massachusetts, where the college endowments amount to more than all those in the southern states. In that state the assessed taxable values are more than one billion dollars more than in Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Tennessee, Kentucky, Mississippi, Arkansas and Louisiana combined. That state has less than one-sixth the population the southern states have.

"Their resources are not to be compared with those of the southern states. The secret is in the fact that they developed the intelligence of the people. Our backwardness shows the costliness of ignorance. What we want and what we must have, is education. I have no fears that we shall get education, but I am anxious about what kind we get. We need not education that merely develops the intellect, but education of character as well.

"Denominational schools only give promise of this type of education, and from such schools we have had such men as Jefferson, Adams, Webster, Calhoun and the Colquitts, of Georgia. Denominational colleges are not going to perish from the earth, and we Methodists must rise to the heights of this providential call."

A secretary of education, to have charge of this work in this conference, will be appointed. The board of education has already asked Bishop Candler to appoint Dr. J. E. Dickey to that work.

When the bishop finished his earnest appeal, Dr. J. E. Dickey, as president of the board of education, submitted the first report of the board, in which pledge was given this hearty co-operation on the part of this conference, and the determination to assume the quota assigned this conference, $1,755,000.

The report named a commission to have charge of the work in this conference, composed of the following: H. Y. McCord, of Atlanta; Garland Jones, of Newnan; Rev. R. G. Smith, of Newnan; Rev. W. H. LaPrade, of Atlanta; Rev. S. P. Wiggins, of Atlanta, and Claude Tuck, of Winnterville.

When the matter was submitted for a vote, the conference voted unanimously to adopt it, and thus swing into line, the most far-reaching Christian education enterprise ever undertaken in the southern states.

A secretary of education, to have charge of this work in this conference, will be appointed. The board of education has already asked Bishop Candler to appoint Dr. J. E. Dickey to that work.

medical examiners, present. J. C. Howard acted as toastmaster, and gave a brief outline of the growth of the business of his agency, after which short talks were made by A. W. Jackson, of the Georgia agency of the same company; Julian J. Jones, and Dr. D. M. Molver, pastor of the Druid Hills Presbyterian church. This followed a wonderful address by Professor A. S. Sutton, principal of the Tech high school, upon the subject, "Life Insurance as Calling." The subject was handled in a most masterful manner by Professor Sutton and was greatly enjoyed by all present.

Frederick, Md., November 11.—Immediate withdrawal of American troops on the Rhine was urged here today by Rep. Charles Kahn, of California, chairman of the house military committee, speaking at the Armistice day celebration. If he had his way in the next congress, the forces would be recalled, he said, adding that American troops were not "bill collectors for other nations, nor are they policemen for the shoddy states of Europe."

Mr. Kahn urged military preparedness as a means to prevent war, adding that he took little stock in talk of a war with Japan.

Charge of reckless driving against L. H. Franklin, 22 Bonaventure avenue, salesman for a local automobile concern, who was driving a Buick sedan, was dismissed by Recorder Johnson after Miss Alberta Patterson, aged 26, of the Lafayette street apartment house, 100 West Peachtree and Alexander streets, at about 10 o'clock on the morning of Monday, July 1, 1924, was dismissed by Recorder Johnson after a preliminary hearing. Mr. Franklin was represented by Attorney J. J. Prater. After the hearing, Recorder Johnson decided that the occasion for the charge was not sufficient.

According to testimony given at the trial, the automobile driven by Mr. Franklin was stopped by J. J. Prater and E. A. McDonald, who was going out Peachtree street at Alexander street, at about 10 o'clock on Monday morning. As the car neared the corner of Alexander street, Miss Patterson saw the car and called out to the driver to stop. Mr. Franklin then walked as though to cross the street, but he did not. He crossed the street about 25 feet in front of his automobile. He then turned back to the curb at this juncture, however, and as it slowed down to discharge passengers, he stepped out of the car and walked back towards the curb.

Thinking that Miss Patterson intended to cross the street, Mr. Franklin stepped out of the car and crossed the street, however, Mr. Franklin had released his car.

pearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes the man or woman look as it does. Turn gray and look streaked, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur Compound will restore the hair to its natural, undreaded color.

Don't stay gray! Look young again! Prepare the remedy, restore a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which is merely the old-fashioned hair restorer, and the addition of other ingredients. Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use hair restorer. It restores the hair beautifully, besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally. Use it with a brush, or soft brush, with it drawing this through the hair, taking one small application at a time. After another application your gray hair disappears after another application or two, its natural color is restored, and you appear years younger.

Announcement of the establishment of a new branch postoffice for downtown Atlanta was made yesterday by George C. Rogers, acting postmaster. The new office will be located in rooms 20 and 22, Peachtree Arcade, the lease for the office having been secured by Rogers. The first of this week, it was learned in a wire from Washington yesterday.

Workmen are already at work making minor changes in the rooms. Installation of the postal equipment will begin next week, it is expected, and it is planned to open the new office on the first of December, or as shortly thereafter as possible, in order to cater to the heavy Christmas patronage.

The branch will furnish the same services as the main postoffice, including a registry, money order and parcel post delivery. It will be open at least within a short while the volume of business at the new branch office will be considerable. The new office covers more floor space. Approximately 1,200 feet are furnished in the present building, and the new office is in charge of the office at its opening, but the staff will be enlarged, as the increase in business justifies.

Dight quarters of two grand champion steers, bedecked with 22 first premium ribbons from the Southeastern and Colquitt County fairs, were on display in the window of the Swift company's plant at Alabama and Central streets.

The buying of prize cattle to be displayed after slaughter is a custom of the Swift company, and is to all big cattle shows, but is being done in Atlanta for the first time. The company's interest in the prize stimulus to the breeding industry.

The steers being displayed weighed 1942 and 659 pounds, respectively, and were bought for 20 cents per pound live weight. They were sold by "E. E. Lister," a local stock dealer, to the owner of the Hereford bull, "Bonanza Jim," which was the grand champion of the Georgia State Fair exposition at Chicago last December.

Prices paid for average steers range from 8 to 9 cents alive, but C. N. Lavery, district manager of Swift & Co.'s local office, states that the company is willing to pay at any time for high-grade cattle in an effort to assist the southern Eat less meat if Kidneys feel like lead or Bladder bothers you—Meat forms uric acid.

Most people forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing course. If you are suffering from chronic dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatism, indigestion, constipation, nervous sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders, you must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidneys, get a course of "Jad Salts." From any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful of the glass salt solution at breakfast a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from a rich natural mineral water, free of ammonia, with lithia, and is harmless to flushed, clogged kidneys and stimulates them to active life. It does not neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which every body should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications. For your dining room take your color scheme from the flowers
This book tells you how

It will tell you just the part of the flowers from which to take the color for your walls. From the greenish brown center of the dogwood may come the scheme for the frieze—or mayhap, a motif of the flower itself. To the color of the under part of the leaves, you may look, for the draperies, with the deeper tone of the top, for the rug. To the brown of the twigs, the scheme for the woodwork and your furniture.

In like fashion, the book will tell you how to bring to every one of your rooms the joys of the outdoors; even to the materials to be used in accomplishing it.

Its suggestions you will welcome. Its counsels you will find sound. To make sure that this beautiful book, called Home Color Harmonies, falls into appreciative hands, we ask you to send 50 cents with each request for a copy.

Following the publication in Atlanta newspapers last Sunday of interviews with prominent Atlantans who favor the proposal to hold an international exposition here in 1925, much interest is being shown in the plan. The idea was brought to the attention of city council by Councilman R. A. Gordon, who introduced resolutions asking for the appointment of the committee.

LOCAL COAL DEALERS FAILING TO CO-OPERATE

Daily Data, Which Was Promised, Not Furnished to District Attorney.

Failure of local coal dealers to co-operate with the government in its efforts to secure lower coal prices for this section was charged in a statement issued Thursday by Hooper Alexander, United States district attorney. Mr. Alexander declared that despite rumors that the local fuel situation is improved, data in his possession indicate that domestic coal movements into the city are slow, and the condition is alarming.

At a recent conference of local coal dealers, called by the district attorney, the coal men promised, it is said, to furnish daily data of their transactions to the government authorities.

"Only one Atlanta dealer has furnished me with this daily information," Mr. Alexander said, "although it was agreed by the coal dealers' committee that I was to receive daily reports of receipts, shipments, sales and prices from both retail and wholesale dealers."

The federal grand jury will convene Saturday at the request of the district attorney to resume its probe into charges of alleged profiteering in coal. The district attorney is of the belief that many dealers are getting too much for coal, but that the big fault rests at the mines.

Established 1887 31 Whitehall St. Atlanta, Ga.

vention. It is estimated that there will be 3,000 messengers present, and in addition many visitors.

The annual convention sermon will be preached by Rev. R. L. Bolton, pastor of the First Baptist church, Madison.

Committee reports will be made as follows: Foreign missions, Rev. H. L. Grice, of Washington; home missions, Rev. Wallace Wear, of Fayette; education, Hon. T. E. Ryals, of Macon.

President Clinton Gray, of Locust Grove, is chairman of the committee on nominations.

One of the most interesting questions likely to come before the convention is the relation of the holding of the convention to the various Baptist-owned institutions of the state.

It is also considered probable that a permanent and far-reaching plan of Baptist education in Georgia will be submitted to the meeting.

Among the distinguished visitors who are expected to attend the convention are Dr. J. F. Love, of Richmond, Va., corresponding secretary of the foreign mission board of the Southern Baptist convention, who has recently returned from a visit to Europe and Asia; Dr. W. C. James, of Birmingham, Ala., corresponding secretary of the education board of the Southern Baptist convention, and Dr. B. D. Gray, corresponding secretary of the home mission board of the Southern Baptist convention.

The program of the convention is in charge of a committee composed of W. W. Gaines, Atlanta, chairman; R. L. Elving, Forsyth, and W. H. Major, Atlanta.

A local committee for the handling of the convention has been appointed as follows: John F. Purser, chairman; J. S. McInerney, Charles W. Daniel, L. Harrington, Joseph Broughton, J. L. Jackson, D. L. Spooner, W. W. Gaines, and Samuel A. Cowan, secretary.

REVERENT TRIBUTE PAID TO WORLD WAR DEAD

the day was the product of the ingenuity and co-operation of Colonel Robert L. Eddy and the men of the transport corps at Camp Jessup.

Opened by Rabbi Marx.

The ceremonies were opened by Rabbi David Marx with invocation of blessings on the assembly and its purpose. While the band of Georgia Tech played, the crowd united in singing the long-meter doxology, "Praise God From Whom All Blessings Flow."

Robert Emmett Harvey, master of ceremonies, spoke briefly on the idea of the celebration, the tribute to the men of the American Legion. "It is in commemoration of the glorious deeds of our sacrifice and heroism that you performed upon the battlefields of Europe that we gather here today to pay you and your comrades, living and dead, our humble, heartfelt homage," he said.

"And who are these gathered here? Whom do they represent?"

"The governor of this state, representing Georgia; the mayor of Atlanta, representing this city; the Confederate Veterans, the War Mothers, the Daughters of 1811, the Daughters of the American Revolution, the Colonial Dames, the Colonial Daughters, the Daughters of the Confederacy, the City Federation of Women's clubs, the Atlanta Woman's Club, the Spanish-American War Veterans and the Sons of the Confederacy and the Boy Scouts, and I thank a hundred of you on your right, left and rear are thousands of school children of this city."

"This day is yours. A hundred years, yea, as long as time lasts, this day will ever be dedicated by a grateful nation and state and city to your honor and your glory."

Mr. Harvey then introduced F. W. McWhorter, who spoke as a captain in the Eighty-second division, who spoke on behalf of the American Legion.

McWhorter speaks.

"The war is ended," he said, "the tap of the hob-nail shoes resound no more from the streets. The echoes of the cannon have spent its last echoes beyond the distant hills. Taps of history and your boys who survived, are here again, and today reunited in the triumph of victory. But to glorify the past, is ideal only, as a reminder of obligations for the future. So on this day of celebration, I pledge to you in the name of the American Legion the standard set, will ever be held high. In peace or war the American Legion will ever be true to the ideals of our country."

"What most inspired us to break the German lines was our thought of home. Your work was no less glorious than ours, your faithful performance to duties here, made possible our achievements on the battlefield. The work of both, and only that, gives us this day, the privilege of celebrating victory. On this great day while you honor pay, may we turn to you once more and make this request. 'Keep steadfast your belief in the returned soldier. The strength of America has always been her willingness to fight for her principles and die for her ideals. To celebrate a victory won in war and forsake in peace the ideals for which it was fought, is but a mockery at a gallant service and the breaking faith of those who died on foreign fields.'"

After the applause following Mr. McWhorter's remarks, he died away. Warren Kimsey, formerly army song leader at Camp Gordon, led the enormous chorus in the singing of "America," and Edgar Watkins, prominent Atlanta attorney, was introduced.

Mr. Watkins' Address.

"Americans with but insignificant exceptions, loyally did their duty," he said. "Our people cheerfully submitted to whatever was necessary to win the war. The men and the women at home were powerful factors in the success that came to us. Our government with machinery fitted only for peace met the demands of war and performed prodigies far beyond expectation in creating, training and sustaining an army. What we did in this respect commands the wonder of the world."

tion of the judicious; and credit therefore, although primarily due to the administration of Woodrow Wilson, belongs in part to all regardless of party. Mistakes were made as they always have been made and will be so long as men are men. These mistakes will be forgotten and with the petty, partisan, selfish critics will pass into oblivion, but the great accomplishments will emblazon the pages of history and furnish material for orators yet unborn.

Woodrow Wilson, whose history will place among the world's greatest, lacked adaptability to yield to proper demands for changes in the treaty of Versailles, and that our senators, most of whom patriotically sought only what their judgment told them were necessary reservations, could not agree, was a misfortune. Mistakes were made, but there is no excuse for bitterness. Great ideas cannot easily be grasped and a world constitution has never before been presented to the nations for adoption. Let us on this day indulge in no capricious criticism but recognize that generally mankind is conscientiously striving for higher and better things."

Special Police Squad.

The throng that gathered was so enormous that a special squad of mounted policemen was stationed by Chief James L. Beavers to regulate any attempt at traffic. Inlets to Fifth Avenue were closed for fifteen minutes prior to the start of the ceremonies so that there would be no confusion.

Seated on the platform were A. L. Henson, state commander of the Legion; Governor H. M. A. Smith; Mayor Key, and a score or more of leaders in civil, military and patriotic affairs of the city. In the front of the platform were the members of the local camp of the Spanish-American War Veterans of the Confederate army and men in the faded blue of the G. A. R. sat on the right. Just above the platform hung the standard of the state of Georgia and in the shade of the roundhouse sat several wounded soldiers who had known the tender care of that organization.

Harvey's Card of Thanks.

Thanks to those who assisted in the occasion were given by Mr. Harvey in the following order:

The success of Armistice day celebration is timed with regret over an unfortunate misunderstanding of the efforts that had been put forth in behalf of the celebration by Professor Baldwin, the Georgia Railway and Power Company band, and the members of this excellent musical organization.

"The committee takes this means of advising the citizens of Atlanta and the same time publicly apologizing to Professor Baldwin and his men. Professor Baldwin, at great physical exertion, requiring six hours of close application, wrote the music for each member of the band to sing. He did this Wednesday and rehearsed his band for four hours on Thursday. The rendering of these airs by Georgia Tech's band, while the parade was in progress, was due to no intended oversight to Professor Baldwin's men."

"The committee desires to thank Professor Baldwin and the Georgia Railway and Power Company band, Colonel Woodward and the members of G. A. R. and the executive committee of Georgia Tech and the members of Georgia Tech High band for the magnificent music furnished for the occasion."

"We also wish to express our appreciation to Mr. Eddy, of Camp Jessup, and his men for the platform, and to the Georgia Railway and Power Company band, for the music furnished, and the detail of the Georgia Tech High band for their patriotic co-operation in making the day a success."

Newspapers Thanked.

"We desire to thank the city editors and reporters of The Constitution, Journal and Georgian for their generous support. They furnished valuable space without stint, and the celebration could not have been the success it was without their wholehearted interest in the occasion. Virgil Shepherd's donation of all decorations added greatly to the affair."

"A large chair from Morris Brown university was in attendance to render service, but the program did not permit of the recognition that was intended."

"The closing up of the very heart of the traffic of the city required the prompt dispatch of the program, in order that the great congestion would not occur over the great safety of the city in case of fire or other emergency. Therefore we were forced to dispense with otherwise interesting features of the celebration that would have added greatly to the exercises."

"The Boy Scouts, as usual, rendered immense aid in distributing the songs to the audience, handling chairs and helping generally. No function of a public nature could be held without them."

"Last, but by no means least, we desire to compliment Chief of Police Beavers upon the superb manner in which his men, officers, and he himself handled the difficult problem presented by the crowds. There could have been no improvement in this feature."

"An outstanding feature of the celebration was that not one penny of expense was gone to, and this fact is a tribute to the patriotism of the city."

HOLIDAY DECLARED IN VALDOSTA.

Valdosta, Ga., November 11.—(Special.)—Armistice day was fittingly observed in Valdosta, the day being declared a holiday and business suspended after 10 o'clock this morning. A parade a mile long, composed of veterans of the civil war, in automobiles, veterans of the Spanish-American and the late world war, Boy Scouts and school children, proceeded from the center of the city to the Georgia-Florida Fair grounds, where the exercises were held. The parade was one of the most impressive ever witnessed here.

Captain R. E. Dunlap, of Gainesville, an overseas veteran, delivered the principal address at the fair grounds. His speech is declared one of the most inspiring addresses ever heard in Valdosta.

Captain J. L. Newbern, of Valdosta, spoke on the American Legion, and Captain R. H. Kelley, United States army, from Fort Benning, spoke on "Americanism." All of the speakers have brilliant overseas records.

A barbecue and luncheon had been prepared at the fair grounds and there was more than enough to feed the great crowd which had been invited to partake of it.

The parade was followed by public exercises at the new city auditorium, where the principal speaker, the parade disbanded at the auditorium and the crowd that swelled the crowd that thronged the building.

"America shall not disappoint the struggling peoples of the earth," General Harris told his hearers, "but shall lead them in the path of happiness and peace and shall stand in the glory of that Millennium day when war shall be no more."

His address was patriotic throughout and won a warm response.

PRESIDENT IS LAUDED IN MADISON SPEECH.

Madison, Ga., November 11.—(Special.)—Armistice day was celebrated here this morning under the aus-of the Outlook club. The exercises were held in the spacious auditorium of the public school building and a large assemblage was present.

The speaker recounted in vivid language the part the United States played in the great war and concluded with a glowing tribute of praise and appreciation for the president. The speaker said the president was just as much a victim of the war as if he had been wounded in the Argonne or on the Somme.

At the conclusion of the address Master Amos Ray, a Boy Scout, blew "taps."

A night letter of fifty words will be sent to the president by the Outlook club expressive of the appreciation of its members for the part he played during the war and tendering him their sympathy and hopeful wishes for a speedy recovery.

Tonight, the Calvin George post of the American Legion will give a banquet for the president and will be called upon for short speeches.

A Revelation in Baking

SHE never had made biscuits. Baking was such a nuisance and she never could tell how things would turn out. If she didn't put in just the right amount of baking powder and just enough salt and soda her biscuits might be flat and tasteless or so soggy they'd give you the "colly-wobblers".

And her husband was so fussy about hot breads and biscuits she decided they'd have to do without them.

But one day she bought a sack of Ballard Self-Rising Flour, ready prepared—with the salt, soda and baking powder in the right proportions—and she baked a batch of biscuits so light and fluffy, so rich and tasty, that friend husband then and there elected her the finest cook in seven states.

Ballard Self-Rising Flour will work the same wonders for you. It is the very best self-rising flour you can buy. Use it and you will never buy another roll or biscuit from the bakery.

It is made of the finest winter wheat, four times rolled and sifted through silk to insure purity and cleanliness. It comes to you ready to use, saving time and trouble. And it cuts the cost of baking!

Ask your grocer for the finest self-rising flour he has—

Lecture at First Presbyterian Church.

Do your children go to the movies? Bring them to the First Presbyterian church Friday, November 12, at 8 o'clock to see moving pictures of the Holy Land and hear Stephen A. Hahoush, Galilean, picture and outline his country.

Hahoush was born on the shores of the sea of Galilee, and as a boy herded sheep on the surrounding hills. He lived for twelve years just as the boy Christ lived and amid the same surroundings.

He speaks the Eastern language fluently, and with a wealth of first hand experience to draw upon, pictures the Holy Land so vividly that it seems as if by magic that you visit the hills of Judea and Galilee. You see the shepherds leading their flocks hither and yonder. You stand along the shores of the sea of Galilee and the river Jordan and Another mother has given up her work to care for her only child—a boy of ten—suffering with typhoid fever. She has no other place, so sleeps with him. She is a widow, and although food has been provided by our clothing committee, they are both badly in need of clothing.

The committee is also trying to collect sufficient clothing to supply a boy of 6 and two girls, 8 and 10 years, respectively, so that they may return to school.

Mrs. Omar F. Elder, chairman of the child welfare committee, requests any member of the Woman's club and any one else who is interested in the welfare of children to give any second-hand clothes for the age children mentioned. Anyone wishing to assist in these cases may have their clothing called for by phoning Mrs. Manget at IVy 5400, or Mrs. J. A. Carlisle West 519.

War Mothers to Meet.

Next Sunday, November 14, has been named by President Woodrow Wilson as "Armistice Sunday." He asks that on that day services may be given an especial note of remembrance for the heroic service and sacrifice of those who died for America in the world war.

The war mothers of Fulton county and all friends who may desire to join with them will meet at Pershing point at 3 o'clock p. m. to do our own little bit of patriotic heroism, and to all others who have died in the service. All who can will bring flowers and garlands to place upon the monument which bears the tablet with the names.

Our flag will be displayed at half-mast. "America" will be sung, and the Rev. Henry Afford Porter, D. D., will close the exercises with prayer.

MRS. SAMUEL D. JONES, President.

School Children Visit Pershing Point.

Under the auspices of the Parent-Teacher association of the Spring Street school, the children of the school yesterday at noon visited Pershing point, and placed there a wreath of beautiful flowers. The children themselves contributed the nickels and the pennies which purchased the wreath, and participated in the rendition of patriotic songs which completed the program of the exercises.

Miss Beerman, who is the principal of the school, encouraged the children in planning for the day, and planned with them the exercises which they held yesterday.

Taylor-Cole.

The marriage of Miss Bess Flavia Taylor, of Nashville, Tenn., and Lieutenant James Edward Cole, Jr., of Camp Jackson, Columbia, S. Palms and white chrysanthemums, placed in pedestal vases, were used to form the stately decorations throughout the house. A silver service basket, filled with white chrysanthemums, adorned the lace-covered table in the dining room. Silver candlesticks held white tapers, and silver compotes were filled with white mints.

Miss Louise Harwell, the groom's cousin, acted as maid of honor, and she was gowned in Nile-green satin, combined with silver lace, fashioned in the style of a tulle and carried a bouquet of pink roses. Lieutenant R. M. Wingfield, of Camp Gordon, was best man.

The great day has arrived. This afternoon Grant field and the Marxist college campus will be linked unto the old battle grounds of

The G. M. A.-Tech High encounter attracts more attention than the other two games. These two teams will fight for the city championship, and the game will have some weight on the state rag. Grant field has never before in the history of that enclosure seen such a pren battle as the G. M. A.-Tech

Both teams are primed for the good fight. When the sun went to rest yesterday the pigeon pushers of both institutions were hard at work, and not until darkness wrapped the field in a black blanket did the young warriors knock off work.

Fred Hger will send his flying team into action this afternoon against the strong Mariast crew on the latter's lot. These teams are about evenly matched and should put up a corking good game.

Mutt and Jeff.

(At the Atlanta.) Created for American amusement by the pen of Bud Fisher, Mutt and Jeff appeared at the Atlanta theater Thursday night in the musical comedy which bears their paired cognomens and delighted a houseful of people who had come to the theater to laugh.

Some rather good dancing by the lady who led in the action, Lillian Goldenstein, as Jacqueline, a vivacious part of one of the several affairs (dramatic) surrounding Mutt and Jeff, featured the performance, from the standpoint of the cast, although Richard Freeman and Louis Merkel were respectively lanky and short enough for their part.

"Mutt and Jeff at the Races" is the full name of this season's show, the business leaves the neighborhood of the paddock after the first act, in their sequence, because the first act at Belmont park, and the connected by an act, a fantastic yachting, apparently at sea.

Mormala, Jackie Jones, Spanish senoritas and a number of other opportunities in the varied appearance of the show, which is a rough-and-tumble activities of the cartoon-borne protagonists.

There are enough of this sort of incidents which fill the comic-strip life of Mutt and Jeff in the comedy to satisfy the desire for the hundreds of Mutt and Jeff adventures, and although the cracks which the ill-matched pair fling constantly at one another are not exactly unknown, they "get over" in good style and keep the sympathetic audience in laughter.

"Mutt and Jeff at the Races" plays three times a week—Friday and Saturday evening and matinee Saturday.

Keith Vaudeville.

(At the Lyric.) Probably the best bill of vaudeville seen at the Lyric theater during the present year opened a three-day engagement Thursday afternoon, and the fact that the program had been shown in Atlanta was noted by the long lines of theatergoers before the ticket office.

Headlining the five acts was "Married via Wireless," a nautical musical comedy presented by the Pollard company. The number lives up in every detail to its title of one of the most elaborate "mechanical" scenic productions in vaudeville.

Passing insouciance, battleships, volcanoes in eruption, New York harbor and other highly entertaining scenes are visible from the deck of the ship on which the scene is laid, and the audience was delighted at the gorgeousness of the setting, the realistic movements of the miniature ships, the blowing of whistles and the cleverness of the actors. The turn is easily the best seen here in months.

The Wilson Brothers, Frank and Joe, comedy cops and yodelers, are old favorites here, but one would have thought they were new, as they appeared before a local audience before, so spontaneous and continuous was the laughter and applause they elicited.

Other acts on the bills are presented by Margaret Fox, a well-known girl, who was roundly applauded; Sherman and Rose, variety dancers, and other highly entertaining acts.

The usual run of news and feature pictures accompanied the bill.

Loew Vaudeville.

(At the Grand.) One of the best programs which has been offered at the Grand theater for months is that showing there for the last three days of the week, combining all the various elements that go to make success.

Loew's polished imported turn featuring six mellowed little Shetlands, is one of the winners on the bill.

While Girl Sings

Margaret Ford, Informed of Brother's Death in Explosion, Hides Her Grief Behind Stage Smile and Performs for Audience.

BY LOYD A. WILHOIT.

A low-bell messenger rapped on Margaret Ford's dressing room door at the Lyric theater at 8:05 o'clock Thursday night and delivered a yellow message to the girl who sings popular songs in the soprano tones of a woman and then in the baritone notes of a man.

Just as the minute hand of the stage clock pointed to 8:07 o'clock Thursday night, Margaret Ford, wearing her brightest and happiest of stage smiles, stepped before an audience that instantly sat erect in tacit tribute to her personality.

The orchestra swung into the rhythmic measures of a song of today that hints of the blended sweetness and pain of love, and Margaret Ford's voice first sang of a woman and then in the tones of a man, began to weave a spell over the hearts of her theatergoers.

The orchestra leader came to attention with a start and began to beat wildly for times the audience emerged from its pleasant mood with a shock and gasped open-eyed.

Margaret Ford's usually smooth voice had broken badly. There was a hoarse, rather than a sweet, note in her singing.

Business Reaction

Analyzed by Choate

Ad Club to Renew Efforts to

Raise $40,000 Fund to Advertise State.

The recent reaction of business from a sellers' to a buyers' market was analyzed Thursday at the luncheon of the Atlanta Advertisers' club by Herbert Choate, treasurer of the J. K. Orr Shoe company, in an interesting address.

Another feature of the session of the club was the pledge of the membership to the $40,000 fund of Fulton county in the "advertising Georgia" movement.

Choate traced the recent situation in the American business world from a state of depression to production and transportation and there was competitive bidding for the prime factors.

"The best business," he said, "is getting to be those who are handiest with the prime factors."

In speaking of the recent break which has come into the country's economy, Choate said that the period of inflation, Mr. Choate said, "our present situation has come about largely from the fact that we have been producing more than we can consume."

He said that the country is now in a position to produce more than it can consume, and that this is the cause of the present depression.

Young Teller Steals $45,000 From His Bank

Carey Admits He Framed Story of the Robbery. Most of the Money Recovered.

Ottawa, Ill., November 11.—Admission that he "engineered the whole thing himself" was made tonight, according to county officials, by Francis J. Carey, 31 years old, teller of the National City Bank of Ottawa, who gave himself up today following his disappearance yesterday at the time of the robbery of the bank. Most of the $45,000 taken has been recovered, $500 being added tonight. Carey disappeared after the robbery, and at first it was thought he had been locked in the vault.

Carey was found at the farmhouse of Mat Kerwin, near Utica, Ill., into which he staggered late today, footsore and weary. He was brought back to Ottawa and made his reported confession. Carey denied the sheriff said, knowledge of the disappearance of $4,000 of the loot. He had $2 in his pocket.

Sheriff Ayers said that a shoe box containing $40,000, which was found following the discovery, apparently had slipped from the young man's hand while he was going over the roof of the bank, on which he had climbed to enter the building. The $500 recovered tonight was found under a mattress in Carey's home.

W. J. Johnson.

W. J. Johnson, 43 years old, died Wednesday at 12 o'clock at his home in Union City, Ga. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Mattie Johnson; two sons, U. L. of Union City, and A. O. Johnson, of Tallapoosa, Ga.; and one daughter, Mrs. Geneva Pollard, of Union City.

MAN BADLY HURT BY AUTOMOBILE

J. L. Campbell, Driver of Machine, Is Arrested and Released Under $3,000 Bond.

A man, who is believed to be A. B. McCrea, of Dawson, was hit and seriously injured last night about 11 o'clock by an automobile driven by J. L. Campbell, assistant cashier of the Federal Reserve bank.

The accident occurred at Ponce de Leon avenue and Myrtle street. Mr. Campbell says that he was turning into Myrtle street out of Ponce de Leon avenue, when a man who was standing on the corner, started to cross the street directly in front of the automobile. He says the accident was unavoidable.

Campbell was arrested on a charge of reckless driving and released under bond of $3,000.

The injured man was taken to Grady hospital. Letters found in his pockets are the only evidence of his identity.

The committee thanked Donnelly heartily, more heartily it seemed than it had a number of other witnesses.

Building Probe Ends In Contest Of 'Buck Passing'

Every Factor in Building Blames the Other for Trouble—Craftsmen's Head to End Labor Troubles.

BY ALEXANDER F. JONES, United News Staff Correspondent.

Chicago, November 11.—There are a great many reasons for the home shortage in the United States, if Chicago conditions are a national reflection. The senate committee on reconstruction Thursday night concluded a two-day session investigating this question here. During that time they heard representatives of every factor going into building construction. They also heard men who would like to find houses to live in.

They heard contractors blame building material men for charging exorbitant prices; material men blame the railroads for non-delivery; railroad executives blame the city; city officials blame the labor unions for striking and holding up construction as well as exacting maximum wages.

Bankers denied they were holding up building by exacting high interest rates and commissions and complained of government taxes. Labor leaders said wages couldn't come down until living costs did.

The progress of the hearing developed into an intricate and amusing "buck passing" contest during which the representatives of the public sat and listened dazedly.

Finally, John Donnelly, chairman of the building trades department of the American Federation of Labor, summed up the situation.

"We are all to blame," he said frankly. "Every factor in building construction is to blame. The material men have contributed, the contractors, really men, engineers, architects and labor have contributed. The public has contributed. There has been a good deal of labor trouble. Part of this was due to unsettled conditions resulting from
